

Wyacondah Valley: A dream come true

Amos and Rachel Yoder standing five stallions, breeding quality black Morgans in Iowa.

Morgans are a way of life for Wyacondah Valley farm owner Amos Yoder and the horse business has been his profession for several years. He and his father fell in love with the breed in 1990 and Amos has focused on raising, training and selling Morgans ever since. His success in the industry is a dream come true.

Standing at Wyacondah for 2005 are the 15-hand, black homozygous DM Regency Windwalker (Windhover Regency x Lone Tree Misty Rae); JMF Arctic Fox (Rum Brook Immortal Image x JMF Royal Moon Fox); the black stallion, HyLee's Other Brother (HyLee's Galaxy Seven x HVK Black Fantasy); the 15.3 hand, three-year-old, big-going black Chandelle High Orion by OH Starwatch and out of a Courage of Equinox daughter; and the Yoder partnership stallion, HVK Dragon Beat by And The Beat Goes On and out of a Noble Flaire daughter.

All the Wyacondah stallions are selected for good disposition, size and quality – and the foals and young horses reflect their quality. The stallions are kept very busy during breeding season with the farm's own mares and many outside mares. Only live cover is offered.

Wyacondah Valley Morgans is breeding for family riding and driving horses.

The 17-head all-black broodmare band includes mares by Rimlo Black Prince, Forevermore, Flyhawk, Caduceus Jesse and Marvelous Monarch. Adding new blood to Wyacondah breeding program is a Bell Flaire daughter in foal to Ultras Special Agent.

The big new barn on the 106-acre farm allows Wyacondah Valley Morgans to also offer mare foaling services to the public and to accept outside horses for both saddle and harness training.

Many of the 2005 weanlings will be for sale, in addition to some 2004 yearlings.

A special thanks from the Yoder family to all those who purchased breeding stock, foals and finished horses from the farm and at auctions. Amos' dream would not have been fulfilled without the support and friendship from the Morgan community.
